PEACE REIGNS IN WEST VA.

Federal Troops Occupation Quiets Troubled District

BOTH SIDES LEAVE

Miners Surrender Arms To Regulars And Start For Their Homes—What Will Happen?" Is Asked

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 5.—There is peace again in the coal fields of West Virginia.

Federal troops brought it. They have effected a complete occupation without molestation of the entire area in which miners and deputies, the latter aided by State forces, have been at active war for more than a week.

Miners are taking the back trails. The defense army of Logan County and her allies, McDowell and Mingo Counties, has left the ridge it defended for 20 miles up and down the valley of the Guyandotte. Regulars took its place.

Ten thousand men arrayed in two hostile armies, are laying down their arms and returning to their homes. Six thousand of these, it is conservatively estimated, were miners.

No regular has fired a shot and no regular has been attacked.

The miners are returning from the front through the Coal River area in special trains. They gather at the mountain towns where the detachments of soldiers are encamped, and surrender. Some of them turn in their rifles and revolvers. Then they start home without interference. Other miners cross the mountains. The disintergration of their army is rapid.

Army headquarters estimated Sunday that 1 000 miners had surrendered; 350 had turned in rifles. and a smaller number had given up small arms. Many miners, it was thought, had secreted their rifles, or had sent them through unguarded mountain trails.

With the siege lifted, the town of Logan rested. There was no fear that miners would pour over the ridge or froce their way through one of the passes. It was the first time there has been security in a fortnight.

Brig. Gen. Bandholtz is trying to effect the pacification with as little disturbance as possible. Civil agencies are operating in the occupied counties although in the occupied counties, although all State officers are subject to Federal command.

"Federal forces have entirely replaced miners and State and county forces in the disturbed area," said Gen. Bandholtz. "So far as I know, no shot has been fired by Federal troops at anybody, and the Federal troops have not been fired on."

Miners were glad to see the soldiers and fraternized with them. Equally glad were the Logan County people.

Detachments of the Twenty-sixth Infantry took their stations Sunday. Regimental headquarters under command of Col. T. M. Anderson, was established here, with a camp on the edge of town. The second battalion was sent to Blair, where there has been much fighting. A machine gun company and a rifle company went to Logan. Another rifle company went to Marmet, and still another to Cabin Creek Junction.

The total number of regulars is now 2 000. They have established patrols throughout the disturbed sections.

When Col. C. A. Martin, commanding the Coal River district, went with the second battalion to Blair Sunday, there was still shooting in the mountains. This died out as Federal troops took over the front in Logan, cross the ridge. Afterwards everything was quiet.

Efforts are being made to determine how many men lost their lives in the week's fighting. The number of deputies killed is not more than six. More uncertainty attached to casualties among the miners because their headquarters, if they had one, did not get reports. Deaths reported, about which there is no question, are fewer than a dozen.

The entire number killed the writer belives, was less than a score. But all sorts of reports are in circulation. Some of these, coming from seemingly reliable sources, tell of miners having buried their dead in groups of fifty. Other reports are that hundreds lost their lives. But union headquarters, usually well informed can give the names of only half a dozen miners who were killed, and officials say the number is not ggreater than this Guerilla warfare, with sniping at long range, accounts for the small casualty list though it is considered remarkable that more did not die. Vast quantities of ammunition were expended.

Now that the trouble is over, all West Virginians are asking what will happen when the Federal troops are withdrawn? It is freely predicted the same conditions will delevolp again. This has previously been the case when there has been intervention by the Federal government followed by withdrawal.

Efforts will be made to settle the Postmaster Thornton today announced that he would attend the National League of Postmasters' convention which will be held in Washington October 11, 12 and 13 for the larger postoffices in the country.

IRISH REJECT PEACE TERMS

Demand Recognition Of Independence And End Of Force Policy

WOULD ARBITRATE

De Valera's Reply Held As Adding To Grave Situation—Must Set Aside Threats

London, Sept. 5.—Eamonn De Valera has once more "irrevocably" rejected Lloyd George's proposals for Irish dominion home rule as a basis for peace negitiations and has again demanded "recognition of Ireland's independence and abolition of the policy of force" as the only preliminary grounds upon which he will treat with the British government.

The gravest view of the situation is taken by some government officials.

"This reply," said a member of the Downing Street circle "removes the only basis upon which future conversations could have been held, in that it refuses absolutely the proffered dominion status, and insists upon complete separation. It looks as though the "gunmen doctrinaires" were on top once more."

The De Valera note does not actunally break off negotiations with the British government. In fact, in its concluding paragraph, it recites a willingness to "appoint plenipotentiaries" if Lloyd George will concede Ireland's independence from Great Britain.

De Valera agrees that definite and immediate progress is essential if Irish peace is to be attained.

"I therefore refrain from commenting upon the fallacious historical references you made in your last communication" he declares.

"The people of Ireland," De Valera continues, "acknowledging no voluntary union with Great Britain and claiming as a fundamental and natural right to choose freely for themselves the paths they are to take to realize their national destiny, have, by an overwhelming majority declared for independence, and have set up a republic. They have been more than once confirmed this choice.

"Great Britain, on the other hand, acts as though Ireland were bound to her by contract in a union which for bids separation. The circumstances of the supposed contract are sufficiently notorious, yet on the theory that they are valid, the British government claims the right to rule and legislate for Ireland even to the point of partioning Irish territory against the will of the Irish people, killing and casting into prison every Irish citizen who refuses allegiance."

De Valera goes on to say that the proposals submitted on July 20 were based on just three premises.

"We have rejected those proposals, and our rejection is irrevocable," he declared.

The claim is made by the Irish President that Lloyd George's proposals were not an invitation to enter into a free partnership with the nations of the British commonwealth, but the offer of a status "definitely inferior." The other dominions he sets up, are guaranteed against domination not only by their constitutional rights but also by their distance from England. Ireland, on the other hand, he pointed out, has neither the constitutional rights nor the element of distance to protect her, but would be divided into two artificial states "each destructive or the other's influence, and both subject to British military, naval and economic control.

"The main historical and geopraghical facts cannot be disputed." De Valera writes, "but Great Britain insits on viewing them from her own standpoint. Ireland must be allowed to view them from hers.

"The history you interpret as dictating union, we read as dictating separation. We are convinced that ours is the true and just interpretion and are willing that a neutral and impartial arbitrator should decide the question.

"You refuse and threaten force. Our reply is: 'If you adopt that course, we can only resist as generations before use resisted.

"Seven hundred and fifty years of history prove that force will not solve the problem.

ARREST IN HOTEL THEFT

Police Say A. J. Lawrence Took Mrs. E. Riebling's $980

Washington Sept. 5.—Alfred J. Lawrence, stationed at the United States navy yard, at New Orleans, was arrested at Alexandria, Va. yesterday by Policeman Wagner. Lawrence was brought to this city, where a charge of grand larceny was placed against him.

Police allege that Lawrence engaged a room adjacent to one occupied by Mrs. Emma Riebling, of Stoney Point, N. Y. at a local hotel. When Mrs. Reibling left her room Lawrence is said to have entered it and stole $980 from a pocket book. Discovering her loss soon after, Mrs. Reibling notified the police. The money, it is alleged, was found on Lawrence.

DREADNAUGHTS WIN

Triple A's Bow To Dreadnaughts In A Great Ball Game

In the fastest game of ball ever played on a local field, the Dreadnaughts again defeated the Triple A's by the score of 1 to 0.

With their backs to the wall and with a different Quayle in the box, they put up a good article of ball. The only run of the game was scored by Devers in the second inning on his double. Williams sacrifice to third, and Stevens sacrifce fly to right. Frye was in his usual form allowing but three hits and striking out eight. Alexander, the big D's. star fielder, made the greatest catch ever seen on a baseball diamond, when he raced all the way to left corner of the barn and leaped in the air and grapped Snyder's hart hit ball which was labeled for a home run and saved the day for his team and also smashed out one of the hits which was requested by his club. This game carries with it the honors of being the undisputed champions of Alexandria city and Northern Virginia. A series is being arranged with Church Hill champions of Richmond, for the championship of Virginia. Having lost but 3 games out of 45, the Dreadnaughts feel like they are entitled to a chance to play any amateur team in the State.

Batteries:—Frye and Stevens Quayle and Steele struck out by Frye, 8; Quayle, 10; base or balls, Frye 1; Quayle 2; hit by pitch ball, Giles and Alexander. Umpires, Long and Jaeschke.

COURT DOCKET HEAVY TODAY

Eleven Colored Men Captured In Poker Raid

$1200 SHORT IS CLAIM

Case of Young White Man Continued Women Scrap—Gun Toter Fined $50—Other Cases

A heavy Labor Day docket greeted Justice Snow in the police court today. There were a variety of cases showing that the police had been unusually active since Saturday night.

The first cases called were those of eleven colored men charged with unlawful gambling. They were taken in a raid made shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday night in a house on the west side of Lee, between Queen and Princess streets. Frank Payne, alleged proprietor, forfeited $20 collateral seven others forfeited $10 each and three who appeared were sentenced to serve fifteen days in jail. Poker was the game the men wer playing. A deck of cards and one lonesome looking twenty-five cent piece was the evidence the police gathered in the raid. The raid was made by Chief Goods, Sergt. Wilkinson, Policemen Thompson, Snellings Magner and Nowland.

Two white women got into an altercation last night. Hair pulled from one womans' head, broken glasses and a broken pencil were the exhibits shown the court by one of the women as a result of her encounter. Both were acquitted and the complainant placed under a peace bond.

A young man who is employed at a King street place of business was charged with being $1200 short in his accounts with his employer. According to the warrant issued the alleged shortage dates back from September 1920 to January 1921. Attorney Charles Henry Smith representing the accused had the case continued till the complainant gives a bill of particulars.

A white man charged with beating his wife was fined $10. He was arested last night by Policeman Bell The wife swooned when she appeared against her husband. The husband was somewhat surprised when informed by the court that the complainant had divorced him and told him he had no right to molest her. He promised to leave her alone in the future.

A white man who said he came from Georgia arrested by Sergt. Wilkinson and Policeman Lawrence Padgett, was charged with carrying a pistol. He was fined $50 and his defense was that he took the pistol away from some boys whom he thought might injure themselves.

A colored man was found early this morning in the hot house of D. G. Grillbortzer on South Patrick street and arrested by Policemen Gill, Rawlett and Welker. A fine of $5 was imposed.

A white man arrested by Policeman Lawrence Padgett charged with being drunk was fined $5, and a white man arrested by Policemen Magner and Welker for being drunk at the Relief Engine House this morning, was fined $5.

SCHOOL PERMITS

To Be Issued Tuesday Wednesday And Thursday For Whites And Friday And Saturday For Colored

The work of issuing permits to children to attend the public schools of the city will be begun tomorrow morning. Permits will be issued Tuesday and Wednesday at Lee School building on Prince street and on Thursday to children at West End School.

Permits to colored children will be issued Friday and Saturday. The public schools will reopen for studies September 2. Each applicant for a permit should bring their tax receipt

As soon as the permits are issued the children will go to the principal of the school which they are assigned and have the teachers prepare their book list for the coming session.

The schools will reopen for studies Monday, September 12. Practically everything is in readiness for the reopening of the schools, and a number of repairs have been made to the schools during the summer months.

LOADED AUTOMATIC IS DISCHARGED

Not being exactly familiar with the workings of an automatic pistol taken from a white man arrested yesterday by Police Sergt. William J. Wilkinson last night took the pistol and held it at a safe distance from him and snapped it several times, the result being one cartridge in the pistol which ploughed its way into the floor at police headquarters

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Sept. 5.—Republican and Democratic women are at variance over the enactment of the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill whose provisions call upon the creation of a new Department of Welfare in charge of a Cabinet officer whose duties corresponded to other members of the President's official household.

It is all well and good to talk about a Cabinet of Welfare devoted to the interests of the women of the country. The present administration has been importuned to add to the official list of the Cabinet household. But there is ever present "Heil and Maria" Dawes, this particular official of the government who is contending for reduced expenditures all along the line. With General Dawes in command of the situation, the Department of Welfare, advocated by a majority of women of the country and opposed by others, is far well into being a reaction.

Republican and Democratic members of the Finance Committee are apologizing these days. Republican members, responsible for tariff and tax enactment say they will not be able to place upon the statutes books before 1922 a bill carrying into effect Republican ideas about customs duties, etc. In the meantime the country is waiting upon the party responsible for the conduct of the government to carry out its party pledges. The Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee concocted and passed a tariff bill and sent it over to the Senate more than a month ago. Senator Penrose, then wise man of the Republican party and Chairman of the Finance Committee, declared that the tariff measure should be thrust aside and the tax revision bill should take precedence. Accordingly, with hid backing of Penrose and other influential Republican members of the Finance Committee, tax revision is to be paramount.

Woodrow Wilson, former President, has not gone into seclusion as a result of his affliction, but rather he is a very active mental partner of Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State, in a good practice of law in the National Capital.

At least, he has given his great brain and scholarly learning to the advice of Mr. Colby in a number of international cases they have outside of any influence he may have exerted while he was the Chief Executive of the United States. He has gone down to the office of his distinguished associate rather frequently and is all the time in touch with his new undertaking.

Woodrow Wilson is getting well and is providing himself one of the real "come-backs" of the present generation. His recovery, under the keen supervision of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his personal physician while at the White House, is a miraculous case. Dr. Grayson, and like Brig. Gen. Sawyer, President Harding's personal physician, "Cary" likes the title of "Doctor" better than anything he has from the fighting outfit of the government, gives all the credit to Woodrow Wilson's return to health to Wilson himself. Dr. Grayson says the former President put himself in his hands and the result is the remarkable spectacle of Woodrow Wilson, lawyer, doing business at an ordinary office in Washington.

All of which reminds that we have in our midst over in Washington an able young abrrister named Joseph Patrick Tumulty, who once upon a time was secretary to a President of the United States named Woodrow Wilson. All the newspaper boys in Washington love "Joe" Tumulty because he always played strictly fair with them during the most tense times this country ever experienced. "Joe" is on the eighth floor of the Southern Building and always has "open house" for his friends of those trying times.

LABOR TAKES HOLIDAY

Practically All Lines of Business Halt

With the skies threatening to weep at any minute it was gloomy Labor Day, although hundreds of persons despite the threatening weather, left for excursions and picnics. Labor took a day to itself and practically all lines of business endeavor halted in honor of labor. Out going trains and boats carried the usual holiday crowds although not as large as usual.

The Sunday Schools of the city this afternoon are holding a picnic at the George Mason High School. The program heretofore published in the Gazette is being carried out.

Baseball games this afternoon attracted many and a large number of persons went on gunning trips. birds being reported as plentiful in the nearby marshes.

Practically all of the pleasure seekers will return home tonight.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS

The Alexandria Playground Association has had five rather strenuous years of existence. But still it has existed! The flame of life has flickered betimes but never gone out. For which due praise to the powers that be in its directorate! This is the first year, however, that it has not had to close its work on September first. For this, due praise, also, to that big-hearted association, the Kiwanis Club! The salary of a teacher is thus assured for ten months. There are no less than 4750 white children of school age, in Alexandria, so the association states, to whom the playgrounds are open, and for whom this privilege means a better manhood and womanhood.

There are three playgrounds that will be accessible: Those on Lee Street, generously tendered by the Southern Railway, through its courteous agent, Mr. Buddin, and which will be supervised by the Salvation Army; those of which we have made mention heretofore, kindly furnished by the Friends; and those obtained through the gracious efforts of Mr. Gentry, freight agent of the R. F. & P. Ry. Co., located on the lot in front of the freight station.

The Association is about to erect a one-room house on the Friends' Playground, and this is largely due to the generosity of the Eastern Wrecking Co., through its obliging manager at Camp Humphreys, Mr. S. Lehrer, who has donated windows, doors, roofing, flooring and other materials for th purpose.

The present teacher is Miss Evelyn Howard, who, in addition to a thorough experience in similar work in Washington, brings to her labors a praiseworthy love and devotion that mean success. It is hoped that next year still another teacher may be secured, as the field is expanding far beyond the present scope and anticipation.

All in all, the people of Alexandria have every reason to congratulate themselves on the addition of this feature to their civic life. The good that is being accomplished is known best to those familiar with the work going on. We have in mind, for instance, the example of one young man who has unselfishly read to the little ones each day this past summer, by the hour. Others, too, seem to take pleasure in giving up a share of their own time and leisure to the city's children. Doubtless this work is of reciprocal influence. Like Portia's quality of mercy, it is twice blest: it blesseth him that gives and him that takes.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

(For The Gazette)

The English language has eighty-two sounds.

There are twenty-six letters in the English alphabet.

The English language is spoken by more than 150,000,000 people.

More people speak the English language than any other.

The English language contains approximately 700,000 words. Of these nearly half are scientific obsolete terms.

Latest English dictionaries contain near 500,000 different words.

The nine most used words in the English language are: And, he, have, it, of, the, to, will, you.

Few English speaking people use more than 2,000 words in oral or written speech. Milton used about 7,500 and Shakespeare 15,000.

Tractors vs. Horses

It seems cruel to put a horse in a contest against a machine, and the death of two horses and complete exhaustion of half a dozen other teams which were entered in competition with tractors at the first of this year's National Tractor Demonstration at Fargo, N. Dak., June 28-30 doubtless will result in the preclusion of horses from any future demonstrations. This was the opinion, after the Fargo event of tractor manufacturer's representatives who stated almost unanimously that they were 'through killing horses and do not want to see another demonstration where horse out fits are entered."

"The demonstration was distinctly successful in its exposition of the advantages of the tractor," says a representative of the tractor men. "The horses entered presented a pitiful appearance in their effort to hold up with tractors. Owners of the teams were competing for cash prizes ranging from $400 downward, while the tractor exhibitors merely contested for honors."

According to the official figures the cost of plowing, preparing and seeding was $1.30 per acre for the tractor, and $2.40 per acre for horses.

Other demonstrations, under the auspices of the National Show & Demonstration Committee, Tractor & Thresher Department of the National Implement Vehicle Association probably will be held in Snid, Okla., and Champaign, Ill., in August and September, respectively.—Farm Life.

ONE OR THE OTHER

A squeaking plow is a sure sign of one of two things. Either the man who is driving it is deaf and dumb or else he has got money enough to buy a new plow, and does't care how soon the hold one gives out —Farm Life.

The Welcoming Farm

The city is turning a cold shoulder to many a man these days. But out in God's free country they always find a welcome and the glad hand. Come on, all you men that need a place near to nature's heart! She never kicked any man out. If he ever goes he goes because he is bound to go, and not because the farm wants him to go.—Farm Life.

A BOY'S FAITH

One thing no man ever yet wrung out of a boy's' lips and that is, the admission that his father is not the best man that ever lived—Farm Life.

WHOSE JOB WILL I FINISH

No man ever really finishes his life work, It is impossible for any of us to do a perfect job, live as long as we may and work though we may to the limit of our strength. Always there will be something left when the sun goes down and the call comes to quit.

Now, there is nothing about this that ought to make us feel down in the mouth, and think that life is not worth living. For it is always possibl for you and me to do a little something toward finishing up some other man's job, as well as pushing our own just as far as we can.

It may be father is the man whose work we will take up and carry on farther than he was able to press before he went away. He made the old home just as beautiful as he could. cut the fallow in the back lot; his hands logged the fallen trees and burned them; he pulled the stumps and built the barn and perhaps th new house. He did good, honest work and left the world better than he found it. A good, earnest, true farmer was your father and mine.

Now it is left for you and me to press father's task still farther toward a perfect condition. We ought to be better farmers than he was. Don't you know it? He left us with the old place in good shape—we see the marks of his fingers on everything we touch. The fields are smoother for what he did; the fences are better than when he burned the stump fence and replaced it with rails or woven wire; the buildings are more convenient: but we, with our advantage, ought to make all these things still better.

And if we do this, that is all that will be expected of us. That, as a matter of fact, is our job, and upon th way we do it will depend the success we make of our lives. Father's job becomes our job. His dream, our dream. His longing to do the very best possible, our highest aspiration. And if this is so, we surely will be happy reach the very best there is in life for us. Let's go right ahead, then, hopefully, courageously and like men. That is all that will ever be asked of us.—E. L. Vincent in Farm Life.

A School In The Open

Those long, happy vacation days designed to retouch Johnny's coat of tan and add a few to little Mary's collection of freckles, recall a certain Cure d'Air in France where the boys and girls who are finding health and strength out in the air and sunshine, daily express their thanks to the children of America who have given them so much happiness. This school on the outskirts of Rheims, is largely supported by appropriations from the funds of the Junior American Red Cross. The schoolrooms were formerly American Red Cross canteens, and for quite a while after the close of the war much of the food was supplied by the Red Cross.

This Cure d'Air (healing by air) school receives children sent from the poorest parts of Rheims, one of the first French cities to crumble before the enemy. Boys and girls are chosen who are in greatest need of outdoor life and wholesome food to restore them to health and to help them forget, the sad experiences of the four years of warfare that drove them into dark cellars and trenches like frightened rabbits.

For these children the green fields and hills have been substituted for the depression of ruined Rheims. All summer they play freely in the sunshine and grow fat and rosy with good cooking. When they return to their homes in Rheims, they find them reconstructed and repaired. Then more children go out to take their places. The children remain in the colony for two months or longer depending on their rate of progress.

The Cure d'Air comprises fifty acres of farm land. In the center stands an old chateau which has been fitted up with dormitories, classrooms and messrooms for use in the winter. Not only are the children taught in the open as much as possible, but they are also given work in the fields and gardens, fifteen acres of the estate being given over to vegetables and fruit.

French children have never been taught to play as have American children, playground instructors in France being practically unknown before Junior American Red Cross playgrounds were organized over there. One of the wonders and delights of the Cure d'Air is the play that marks the recess periods and the hours given over to a healthful exercise.

Temperature At Center of Can Important In Canning

In canning work one of the most important considerations is the time required for the food at the center of the container to reach the temperature of the retort of water bath in which it is being processed. United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin 956 a Study of the Factors Affecting Temperature Changes in the Container During the Canning of Fruits and Vegetables, which has just been issued, centers attention on these time-temperature relations. The purpose has been to bring out the underlying principles, rather than to lay down definite rules of procedure. The results of this experimentation are of interest to scientific workers in the field, to commercial canneries, and similar large scale handlers of foods.

Successful preservation of foods by canning is due primarily to the fact that in the processing, or cooking, the bacteria and other microor garrisons which cause spoilage are destroyed. Since the elimination of these microorganisms is dependent upon the use of heat as a sterilizing agent, it becomes of paramount importance to know just what temperatures and processing periods will destroy them. If uniformly good results are to be expected a sufficient degree of heat must penetrate to all parts of the can or jar and must be maintained long enough to render all microorganisms harmless. Before an accurate judgment as to the proper cooking period can be found it is necessary to know how long a time is required for the heat to reach the food at the center of the container.

The mercury thermometer, if properly calibrated and standardized, has been found sufficiently accurate for practical work. A satisfactory apparatus has been devised for using the mercury thermometer to measure temperature changes at the center of the can.

The fruits and vegetables as processed in these tests fall roughly into two groups with reference to time-temperature at the cnter of the can in consists of those fruits and vegetables, such as string beans, packed so that there is a free liquid filling the interspaces between the pieces of material. The rate of change of temperature at the center of th can in this group is very rapid. The second group consists of materials of a heavy or pastry nature that are packed in such a way that little or no convection can occur, as with corn or sweet potatoes. The rate of change of temperature in this group is very slow. Sometimes mechanical agitation is employed. Variations in the composition of the material, however, have very little effect if the consistency of the material is such that no convection can occur.

Salt has very little direct effect upon the rate of change of temperature in the can. Dilute sugar solutions have only a small effect, but the concentrated solutions retard the rate of change. Solutions of starch also retard it. In 5 per cent starch the consistency becomes such that all convection is stopped and the rate change is very slow. Other material of a viscous nature, such as protein or pectin, retards the rate of change of temperature. The retarding effect of a glass container is of more importance in the first group than in the second. Glass cools faster than tin in the air, but can not be cooled in water.

Differences in the diameter of the container as only of importance in processing of materials of heavy consistency such as corn. Whether the processing temperature is 100 degrees, 109 degrees or 116 degrees, or 121 degrees C., the temperature of the bath or retort is reached in the container in approximately the same time. Higher temperatures, however, break down the tissues of tomatoes, which are a striking exception to the rule. Both the single period and intermittent processes are studied in this bulletin, which is available upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Household Hints

Useful at all times of the year is the enameled ware pie-plate, not for pies only—though pies are very good in summer and with fresh fruit in abundance can be easily varied—but for cooking corn-pudings and utilizing leftovers. It is a mistake to make corn-pudding in a deep dish. When there are large families however, the shallow enameled ware baking dish may be found more practicable than a pie plate for the leftovers which should never be accumulated in warm weather. Every scrap of meat should be used within 24 hours of its being cooked, even if there is ice on which to keep it. The prejudice against cooked over food really comes from the fact that food thus prepared has often been kept too long. Cooked soon and in smooth porcelain like vessels of enameled ware, it can never be harmful and with a little ingenuity can be made to add much to the variety of the family menu.

WHEN THE FRUIT SUPPLY IS LOW

Over a large part of the country all fruit has been a failure and house wives are going to realize it very keenly when it comes to planning their winter menu. Not to have apples to bake nor apples for pies or puddings is indeed a dismal prospect. This is a time when the use fruit as well as a vegetable. An fruit as well as a vegtable. An enameled ware preserving kettle, tomatoes green, and tomatoes ripe plus good recipes and some ingenuity, and it will be possible to put up preparations which will fill in some of the sad blanks left by the missing apple. Green tomato mince meat is an old favorite. Better than mince meat most people say. It should be prepared in enameled ware for the porcelain like surface of this ware is not affected by the sharp rather crude acid of the tomato and other fruits. It is quite wholesome and an excellent pie-filler. Green tomatoes also make a very good sweet pickle. Less known in this country is a jam made of the ripe tomato which is popular in Hungary, where they eat tomatoes raw, sliced with sugar and cream as we do peaches. This jam is made by boiling down the ripe tomato until a thick paste results. An enameled ware preserving kettle is invariably used as it will not darken the color of the jam. Then add sugar in the proportion of a cup of sugar to a pint of paste. Add a tablespoonful of powdered cinnamon and a teaspoonful of powderd cloves to each pint of the jam. This makes a very good jam to use in puddings or to spread on bread. Another fruit may be made to do double duty this year by making preserves and sweet pickles of the watermelon rinds we should ordinarily throw away. Cooked slowly in the enameled ware preserving kettle, thus preserving the color unimpaired a handsome as well as a delicate preserve is the result. Those who find it a little too delicate can give character to the preserve by adding sliced ginger-root.

BOYS WHO KNOW HOW TO RAISE FUNDS

In one of our smaller inland cities an enterprising band of boys have formed what is known as the "Camp Club." From small beginnings it has grown to a membership of over forty. This year they decided to have as headquarters a cabin modeled on the rest hut of the war zone They built the hut themselves but even then found it cost a great deal and they were left without money for furnishing. So they gave an entertainment in it to raise funds and call attention to their needs. Among other things they had a long table on which was spread the indispensable outfit of rest hut enameled ware cups, mugs plates saucers everything comprised in the official equipment of the real war rest hut. This was loaned by a local dealer. A large sign over the table read, "We need these—Who will give us a cup?" The sight of the cups and the boys proved an irresistable combination and before the evening was over the cooking and table equipment was secured. Other furnishings being more expensive came more slowly, but the rest hut is becoming more attractive week by week.

A DUEL!

Yesterday afternoon, in the state of Virginia, near Alexandria, was fought a Duel between COMMODORE BARNEY and L. TAYLOR, ESQ., both of Baltimore. The first fire was without effect; on the second fire Mr. Taylor was wounded in the breast, not considered as dangerous. The instant the Commodore discovered his shot had taken effect, he jumped into the carriage, exclaiming, "I have plumped him in the heart, by H—n. Coachman, drive like the D—l!"

Meuse-Argonne Offensive

On the morning of October 16th the shattered remnants of our battalion returned to a point about a mile from the line, giving way to the second battalion of our own division. These began immediately to press the retreating Huns on toward their last line of resistance—the city of Sedan.

Just 26 of the original 299 men who were with our company when the offensive began answered "here" when the roll was called after this battle. Our captain, a man from Des Moines, Iowa, having been wounded at Chateau Thierry, gave way on the second day of the battle under the terrific strain, and was dispatched to the rear. Our first lieutenant, who was wounded the first day and who was carried back to the first aid by "Bobby" Lyons, of Alexandria, died in the hospital, and the rest of that large number were killed, wounded, or missing.

The 26 of us "dug in" on the side of a hill while arrangements were being made for our removal to a rest area. Every afternoon a "salvage detail" was formed to salvage the equipment left on the battlefield. And what a job! At a five pace intervals we would advance through the woods, picking up old canteens, rifles, bayonets, ammunition, and other miscellaneous equipment. If you will picture a dirty-faced, unshaved boy in what was once olive drab, with a rusty rifle or two hanging over his shoulder, several old bayonets attached here and there to his person, a canteen or two in one hand, several old helmets in the other, walking and sometimes wading through mud and water, and if you will then imagine a whole group of such figures, you will have a fairly good idea of a salvage detail in the Argonne Forest.

There were often individual tragedies on those excursions. On one occasion, as the squad was advancing through an open space, a high explosive was heard overhead. It had "gotten lazy" in its journey, and fell in front of the salvage detail. Private Olivo Tonson of Winterset, Iowa was killed outright by the explosion and several were wounded. That was the last time we were sent out on such a mission. The "powers that be" evidently decided later that a human life or two was worth more than the salvage value of a few old rusty muskets—a bit of "rare judgment," to say the least.

Early one Sunday morning we crawled out of our "holes" and advanced in single file at five pace intervals through the woods into a valley beyond. Having reached a point some four or five miles from the line we were met by our rolling kitchen outfit, with a sumptuous meal ready for us—beefsteak, potatoes, jam, and coffee with both sugar and milk. We had gone without milk so long we thought all the cows in America had surely died long ago. And sugar—oh boy! rarely did we see it, and more rarely still did we taste it. All the sugar sent over for Americans must have been labeled "For Officers Only."

After that wonderful "banquet" we were treated to the best surprise of all-mail from home! There were those letters with that old family home town post mark. These letters were about the only thing that made life worth while during those awful days. They brought back the thought of home, of "Mother" and "Dad." They told of the doings in the old town back in the States; of the efforts that were being made by the people at home to win the war and to bring us speedily home again. They contained almost always just "good news." After the reading of the letters, off to some secluded spot, out with the old faded, torn picture of mother, sweetheart, wife, or child—a glimpse or two—a prayer that they might be protected from all harm while we were doing our part over there; and then back to the crowd, ready for more of the damnable business of warfare.

After dinner we proceeded on our journey to the rest area, which turned out to be a wooded section on a hill near Apriment within range of the enemy's guns. As a "rest" area it was an ideal place to get nervous prostration. The "zizz bangs" from the German lines played "Over the River Charlie" off and on all day long. Several men of our battalion were killed and as many more wounded during our sojourn in this "rest" area. Every one was "on edge," and the same spirit of unrest that characterized our stay in the St. Mihiel rest area was evident here; but there were exceptions. Norman "Bo-Yee" Roberts, of Alexandria, the "gloom killer" of company F continued to be a living evidence of the truthfulness of that threadbare adage, "Laugh and the world laughs with you." With always a happy smile and a funny, but clean, joke to tell, he won the admiration of his comrades over there.

Poultry Business Retains Profit Element

Under our conditions, the average farm flock counts about 150 hens. Of our 78 record-keepers who started this year, the average flock was 148 and strange though it may seem, the hens return about one-fifth the income on the average farm. We take this from the farm management records that we have covering a large number of farms for three years on each. But to find a farmer who is willing to let his wife extract enough grain from the bins to feed the hens is somewhat extraordinary. Then, too the man frequently howls that poultry doesn't pay. The facts are that the poultry prices have kept up much better all along than anything else that struck the price toboggan.

Broilers this summer have brought about what they did last year and though eggs seem much lower, things are profitable or unprofitable in relation to what it costs to make them.

Recently the poultry department of Iowa State College tells us that the feed cost of a dozen eggs is 12.4 cents and they are selling for a substantial premium over this. Last year at this time eggs were bringing 38 cents but we are having to put out $2.00 corn in order to get them. With 45-cent corn, 24-cent eggs are much more profitable than the 38-cent eggs of last year.—Farm Life.

PEACE RETURNS TO COAL FIELDS

issues that have kept the State in turmoil for years. This will be difficult, for hatred is deeply implanted, and there have been many deaths Mountain law is an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

Operators insist that they will not consent to unionization of the mine fields of Logan. Mingo and McDowell counties. The United Mine Workers will continue their efforts to organize these territories because without them coal production can not be halted. Southwest Tennessee broke the national coal strike of 1919. Unions insist on the right to send in peaceful organizers. Operators declare they will not harbor "foreign labor agitators."

This question of unionization is the fundamental cause for disturbance.

Miners also demand that the mine guard and private defective system be abolished in the State. Operators insist this evil, if it ever did exist, has been eradicated. They blame "labor agitators" for all the trouble.

The struggle involving the open shop, is greater than that of the southwestern part of Tennessee. All employers and workers are interested.

Look to Your Fire Insurance Now!

When the weather begins to change for the worse and the wintry winds begin to whistle around the corners of your home, then is the time when you begin wondering if your insurance is in order. Fighting fire in the winter is a precarious task, no matter how large or small the blaze. It cannot be controlled with the ease that attends the battling with the greedy flames in the warm weather and there is more danger to your beloved possessions—that is, providing they are not thoroughly protected by the right kind of fire insurance.

Don't wait until the lesson is brought home to you in such a forcible manner that it will cost you thousands of perfectly good, hard earned dollars to replace what the flames have destroyed. Come to this office today and let us tell you how you can protect everyone of your belongings and set your mind at ease regarding the question of fire, tornado, theft.

We represent some of the largest and most reliable fire and tornado insurance companies in the world today and we have built our reputation around service and satisfaction.

Helping To Send The Nation's Surplus Overseas

In an article in the Journal of The American Bankers Association Eugene Meyer, Jr., Managing Director of the War Finance Corporation, outlines the extent to which the Corporation is working through bankers and exporters to assist in the difficult problem of financial readjustment:
"The advances," says Mr. Meyer, "which have been approved by the Corporation since it resumed operations in January, or which are now under negotiation, total $63,471,700. Of this sum $32,696,700 represents advances approved by the Corporation, while the remaining $30,775,000 represents business that is in process of negotiation; and approximately 93 per cent. of the total covers agricultural commodities. The largest transactions relate to cotton, the nation's greatest single export commodity, on which the Corporation has agreed to loan $16,560,000. In addition, there are pending before it applications involving $15,225,000 and covering the financing of approximately 500,000 bales of cotton, in cluding 200,000 bales for a cooperative association in Oklahoma and 300 000 bales for a similar organization in Texas. The transactions pending and approved represent, in the aggregate, approximately 1,000,000 bales of cotton.
"The business under negotiation in connection with wheat exports represent an application from co-operative associations in the Northwest for an advance of $7,500,000 on approximately 10,000,000 bushels. Assistance has been given in financing the exportation of approximately 7,000 hogs heads of tobacco, involving $1,848,600, and another transaction covering more than 18,000 hogsheads, involving $6,500,000 is being developed.
"The Corporation also has agreed to advance $8,500,000 to banking institutions on shipments of condensed milk and $250,000 to a co-operative association on exports of California canned fruits and vegetables. If satisfactory arrangemnts can be made, additional advances aggregating about $550,000 may be made to the latter organization. Loans on meat products, totaling $2,000,000, have been approved, and other advances agreed to include the following: On railway equipment to China, $2,925,000; on copper and sheet steel to Italy, $325,600; and on sugar mill machinery to Cuba $287,500. An additional application for an advance of $1,000,000 in connection with the exportation of railway equipment to Canada is under negotiations."—Journal of the American Bankers' Association.

Rural Letter Carriers

Richmond Va., Sept. 5.—(Special) There is probably no group of men who are as familiar with the need of the counties and of the State of highway improvement as the rural letter carriers. Traveling the roads of the State every day, they are familiar with the inconveniences and even hardships endured by the farmer and his family residing on a bad road. Likewise they have witnessed the joys and benefits brought to the farmer by the substitution of a highway which can be traveled all year round, for the muddy trail travelable only for a few months out of the year.
Good roads therefore was one of the principal subjects under consideration at the recent annual meeting of the Virginia Rural Letter Carriers' Association held in Roanoke. At the conclusion of the discussion a resolution was passed, indorsing the program of the Virginia Good Roads Association for the issuance of State bonds for highway construction and pledging their co-operation to the full fullest extent possible. The resolution as passed is as follows:
RESOLVED—That the Virginia Letter Carriers' Association hereby indorses the program of the Virginia Good Roads Association for an issue of bonds for the purpose of constructing the State System of Highways in a period of 6 to 8 years instead of a period of from 18 to 20 years, if built from funds derived from current revenues only, and that we pledge our co-operation and support to the Virginia Good Roads Association in every possible way in furthering this movement.

The top of life—and the bottom! And the same fair woman reached them both. Why? How? And which was the end?

A romance aglow with the metropolitan beauty and richness always linked with the name DeMille. Yet built from the hearth of a village blacksmith and made of the stuff that fills the simplest hearts.

So many coal consumers have delayed putting in their Winter coal this season that there will be an urgent demand when the weather gets cold which will make it impossible for the mines to produce, the railroads to haul or the dealer to handle all orders as satisfactorily as the trade will want.

It is our advice to all consumers to enter their order now and have their coal put in as promptly as possible.

Federal Highway Aid

Richmond, Sept. 5.—Although the indications point to favorable action by Congress on Federal Aid for road construction, when that body convenes late in September, it is reasonably certain that the total appropriation will be cut from $109,000,000. the amount available for Federal Aid and National forest roads for the year of 1920-21 to $75,000,000, according to Geo. P. Coleman, State Highway Commissioner and chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

The Dowell-Phipps bill which has passed the House has been passed by the Senate with a number of changes and has gone back to the conference committees of both houses. The advocates of the retention of the Office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture provision won out by a large majority in the House, and were successful in defeating the commission plan on the floor of the Senate. With this eliminated it is believed that an agreement will be reached by the two houses immediately after the recess.

The cut in the appropriation, if it is made, will be felt rather keenly in the development of Virginia's road plans for 1922 and 1923, unless the General Assembly can materially increase the funds available for road construction outside of the mill tax, one-third of the automobile tax and valuation of convict labor. These items will amount to $2,600,000. If the Federal Aid appropriation stands as passed by the Senate at $75,000,000. Virginia's share will be approximately $1,375,000. as against $2,000,000. this year. An appropriation of $700,00 was passed by the General Assembly of Virginia to supplement other State and Federal funds for this year, so that a continuation of the same sources of revenue would give Virginia only $4,675,000 which will be considerably less than the current fund of $5,300,000 in addition to the accumulations from 1920, now all expended. Not only has all of the previous Federal Aid been appropriated on projects completed, under way or under consideration by the office of Public Roads in Washington, but there are other projects ready to be submitted as soon as the new Federal Aid is due. Funds have been loaned to the State by counties to match the Federal Aid. This will materially reduce the amount of funds available for 1922 work. The new Federal Aid bill as passed by the Senate provides for $25,000,000 to be immediately available and $50,000,000 available from date of passage of the act.

Sentiment In Business

The old saying that "Business is Business" gets a jolt once in a while when some big business firm stirs a little sentiment into the mixture. Recently a big chewing gum firm put a new brand on the market and called it Wrigley's P-K's. There have been many guesses as to the meaning of the name. Some have said that it was the initials of the slogan "Packed tight—Kept right," but really it's just a little matter of sentiment. P. K. are the initials of Philip K. the son of the founder of the business, Wm. Wrigley Jr., P. K. is now in the business as one of the Vice-Presidents.
